

WHEN DRASTIC TIMES MEET DRACONIAN MEASURES

In this modern age of information, characterized by rapidly increasing levels of knowledge in science and technology, man has lost the taste of true science. Science has practically devolved into a tool of defying and much worse denying its very creator, God!

Darwinism is on the raise. Man is synthesizing daily weapons of mass destruction against his fellow man. Genetically engineered diseases are saturating our atmosphere as more sorrowful events in the world of science are monarchically succeeding each other. Preventive health workers are running into rampant extinction and majority of those remaining are merely programmed “prescription-ists”, helping generate more millions of money for the deadly Pharmaceutical Industry.

With such a chain of occurrences in our world, one must be wondering how many more seconds we have till our own time bomb of “wrong education and irresponsibility” breaks planet earth into invisible particles of dust. But guess what? You will not be perturbed by such horrors for long. The move by Bugema University to establish the school of natural science has most definitely come to remedy the infection of wrong science in our community, country and the entire world.

Through intricate integration of science and religion, Bugema University will most definitely win the battle. In the gross darkness of error dressed in the gabs of pseudo-science, the flag of hope has risen on the holy hill. No doubt, true science has a home in this world. No doubt Bugema University will ignite a fire of right science amidst mistaken science and the light will shine.

As such “let your light so shine” is a theme that cracks open even the hardest hearts. The phrase “Let your light so shine” almost sounds like saying, “Bugema, please take us go back to true science!”
