

PathPro Study In China

Overview

PathPro Project is one of the fruits from the fourth round of U.S.-China Consultation on People-to-People Exchange (CPE) co-chaired by Secretary of State John Kerry and Chinese Vice Premier Liu Yandong in 2013. The Project aims at building up sustainable platform for cooperation between Chinese higher vocational colleges and U.S. colleges and universities, especially through enhancing global perspectives for the faculty and students.

As one of the initiatives of PathPro Project, PathPro Study in China is a two-week program offering students from the US opportunities to gain hands-on experiences with Chinese peer students, to walk into emerging industries in China, and to witness the charm of a nation with fast growing economy and fascinating traditional culture.
